

COLLIERS PROJECT LEADERS USA EXPANDS NORTH CAROLINA TEAM WITH ADDITION OF MATTHEW CYR

Raleigh, NC – January 16, 2026 – Colliers Project Leaders USA, a division of Colliers Engineering & Design, is pleased to welcome Matthew Cyr as Geographic Discipline Leader, Project Management. Matthew brings more than 23 years of distinguished leadership in capital project delivery, infrastructure operations, and complex construction programs within regulated and mission-critical environments.

Colliers Project Leaders is accelerating success in the Southeast and across the country, partnering with clients to lead, manage, and deliver complex capital and infrastructure projects of any scale, mitigating risk, and maximizing value. Matthew will oversee project management operations across the region, providing hands-on leadership and owner-focused advisory services across planning, procurement, design, and construction to drive predictable cost, schedule, and quality outcomes.

Throughout his career, Matthew has demonstrated proven success in aligning capital projects with business strategy, optimizing financial performance, and scaling high-performing teams. His executive core competencies span capital project delivery, construction operations, lifecycle program delivery, strategic planning and execution, P&L ownership, financial oversight, risk management, and cross-functional stakeholder engagement.

"We are thrilled to welcome Matthew to our leadership team. His extensive experience managing capital programs in regulated environments, makes him an exceptional addition as we continue to expand our capabilities in the region," said Joseph Naughton, Regional Manager. "Matthew's strategic approach to project delivery will be instrumental in driving continued growth and client success across the region."
